PRIMARY SOURCES are original documents, records, or firsthand accounts of an event. Some examples are court records, letters, diaries, speeches, photographs, newspaper articles, even memories of an event gathered in an interview. The format of a primary source may vary (text, website, recording, etc.) but the content of the primary source must be of the same time as your subject.

SECONDARY SOURCES describe and interpret events and primary source materials that have already occurred. Some examples are biographies, books about a single topic (or monographs), textbooks, documentary films, magazine and journal articles.

Books provide specialized, in depth information about your topic. Browse books about history in the Adult and Juvenile (J) 900 through 970 sections of the library.
